TOPOLOBAMPO.

PAUL SMITH VOWS IT IS A PER

leged Charms in Gorgeous Colors-The Obronicle Story Declared : Base Fabrication.

THE TIMES has given a careful pursuit, from the first, of Owen's gigantic Topolobampo scheme, which has attracted so much attention from Maine to Oregon. The latest news came in telegrams from San Francisco, announcing the utter disgust of colonists who had just got back from Topolobampo. This story was contradicted the same night by dispatches from others of the party, who declared that the colony was all right and all that was claimed for it.

right and all that was claimed for it.

About 25 persons met Sunday night to hear Paul Smith tell what he had seen there.

About 25 persons met Sunday night to hear Paul Smith tell what he had seen there. The speaker was, as he declared, entirely devoid of the oratory the subject in hand might warrant. He disolaimed, also, any pretensions to the title of botanist, geologist or mineralogist, but said he professed to having common sense, and he gave to the 25 persons present a calm, commonsense sort of a talk.

Mr. Smith said he was not a colonist or financially interested, but had been sent by citizens of Humbolt county to learn the true merits of the scheme, see all he could, and report to them. He left this city December 6th, and certain persons received from him, a promise to give a lecture here on the object of his trip as he returned.

He went by way of Benson, Ariz, to Gusymas, Mexico, and the balance of the way horseback. After leaving Arizona he was amazed at the change in the appearance and beauty of the country after passing through the many long stretches of Arizona desert. From Gusymas south along or near the coast he found the country comparatively level, and though desolate at the coast, was well covered with a growth of trees and vegetation which increased in density, and value toward the mountains. He saw antelope and very many quall and rabbits. Also the most wonderful mirage he ever witnessed. But he stated that his remarks were not to be applied to the whole country, but only to the region of Topolobampo that he traveled over and saw.

Arriving at the bay, he staid a day or two with the people, whom he found full of industry, all busy and all contented, though living in tents and deprived of many conveniences. He then, with his guide, started to explore the route of the proposed railroad to tho inland, upon which colonists are at work.

About the bay are mountains on nearly all sides but of no great elevation and veniences. He then, with his guide, started to explöre the route of the proposed railroad to the inland, upon which colonists are at work.

About the bay are mountains on nearly all sides, but of no great elevation, and about ½ mile from the water of the bay the broad plain commences and extends about 5 miles eastward, forming the valley of the Fuerte River, "as fine a tract of rich, black, alluvial soil as he ever saw, covered with a considerable growth of trees of scrub growth and not over 25 feet high, with trunks 8 feet below the branches." The proposed railroad reaches the river 45 miles from the bay and leads along the river valley toward its source in the mountains in the northeast. The speaker followed the source of the river valley for 125 miles, and found frequent settlements of Mexicans, living a few families in each hamlet. There is very rich soil 8 or more feet deep, and about one are out of 100 under cultivation. The land is all owned by individuals, chiefly in large tracts, and can be bought at from 75 cents to $1.50 per acre.

The cfty of Fuerte is about 80 miles from the bay by the route traveled. It is said to be 300 years old, and the appearances bear out the statement. There are 2800 inhabitants. The land fles 2 feet above high water in the river, and could easily be irrigated, but as yet is not, simply because it requires labor the Mexicans detest.

Near the mountains the timber grows larger and better. The valley grows more narrow, and grasses are found in great abundance, Oak and pine abound in the mountains show 300 years old, sand pine abound in the mountains seems to be solid silver with some gold and copper, yet the Mexicans have scarcely gone deep enough into the mountain side to conceal the miners at work. Mr. Lamphear, American, has his extensive mines, a ten-stamp mill, conveyed 50 miles to we rise and seems to be solid silver with some gold and copper, yet the Mexicans have scarcely gone deep enough into the mountain side to conceal the miners at work. Mr. Lamphear, American, has Lamphear, American, has his extensive mines, a ten-stamp mill, conveyed 50 miles across the mountains on mule-back and is taking out $400 worth of ore per day.

The resources of this region are the richest 1 • · · · r saw. He found at every $- pping place specimens showing free silver in abundance, as well as other metals, and had specimens with him to substantiate his statements. He saw corn growing on the mountain side where men had climbed and inserted the grains in a hole made with a stick, and which came to perfection without cultivation at 3000 feet. They plow as they have done for 300 years, with a wooden trunk of a tree for a plow. Many dig holes in the soil and plant melons, beans, corn and other seeds in the bottom to get moisture without the labor of cultivation. The maguey plant is devoted to distilling a kind of fluor, and its fibers make an excellent material for rugs, mats, bags, etc.

Mr. Smith said he found the people very civil kind and polite. He delivered quite a eulogy on the cleanliness, industry and politeness of the women, and said t vey were ladies and far superior to the men. Native Mexicans, while lazy, have money and own land. They don't know how to charge big prices for produce or favors where they have not learned from us. All are very liliterate.

The range of the mercury for the six prices for produce or favors where they have not learned from us. All are very illiterate.

The range of the mercury for the six weeks of his stay in the Fresno Valley was from 48 to 76 degrees; the most extreme summer heat 104 degrees, and usually about 95. Sea-breeze rises every day at 10 o'clock, and a breeze from the land at night. Three months' rain sets in about Jüly. The rain falls at night, and the growth and beauty of the vegetation is simply gorgeous. There age many varieties of birds, and frequent flowers.

The colonists are all busy, contented and happy. They are from all parts of this country, and remarkably intelligent; every man knows the plan and believes in its final realization. They are at work on a ditch to convey them fresh water, which is now brought to the camp at the mouth of the bay in a small sloop. They are also at work on the railroad, and except the first mile, this will be as easily built as it is possible to build anywhere. Certain ranch men some miles back in the country gave the colonists a tract of land on condition a town would be built upon it, and this being accepted men were sent inland to commence operations on the town and this explains the assertion of Nichols in the Chronicle, and Mr. Smith denounced the statements made further by that gentleman, if he might call him such, as unqualifiedly false. There is no tide land at the bay. The bay is about 4 by 6 miles in extent of deep water. The landlock is a mile and a half wide of water over 100 feet deep. While waiting out in front of the bay for a ship to San Francisco the speaker had the town which to be used as a dining-room.

captain make soundings and found four fathoms of water in the shallowest places, and a huge rock 30 miles out in the guif affording a guide for vessels entering. The bay abounds in fish. The prospect on entering the bay is not inviting, but once up on the bluff, where the site of the city is, the land is the finestever known to the narrator. Their object is to build up a colony through cooperation and without any competition, and show to the world that labor produces all things. The 400 persons are very active and enthusiastic and have already added several thousand dollars to the value of the place.

What can they do with their produce? Sell it to the 250,000 Mexicans who are now paying for American goods at over 100 rerects added duty. There is a change of the produce of the place of the place of the place of the place.

Sell It to the 250,000 Mexicans who are now paying for American goods at over 100 per cent. added duty. "There is a chance and demand for 50,000 laboring colonists at Topolobampo to make all they can and sell it."

memand for 50,000 laboring colonists at Topolobampo to make all they can and sell it."

Why should they succeed? The climate is not severe like this. They can live in tents, live more cheaply. Wood for fuel is abundant, lumber in the mountains. Concessions from the Mexican government giving them their supplies of all kinds free from duty for one year, and exemption from taxation for that time—all of which this government never would grant. There is no difference between the members, all are equal, with no competition, no opposition. Among the Mexicans is found no combination or union of capital or brains to make them competitors. It is also a better place than this country for those who like it better, as was true of the speaker. The region is very healthy. Some mild small-pox from Guaymas.

Mr. Smith had 22 specimens of wood, seven of which can be highly polished. The wild cotton tree produces abundance of cotton fiber useful in many ways. All manner of fruits are grown, and sugar plantations are a success. And in short, it is as near perfection as the speaker ever saw in any respect desirable, and he believes it is to be the desired haven of refuge for the laboring man in this country until the time shall come when labor will get its due here.

Mr. Smith departed for San Francisco and will try to induce his friends to load ships with lumber and other requisites and set out at once for Topolobampo.

TWO CATCHES.

A Man With a Stolen Ticket and a Watch-snatcher. Deputy-Sheriff C. L. Cruz made two im-

Deputy-Sheriff C. L. Cruz made two important hauls yesterday. It will be remembered that last Friday night an old man was robbed at the Wright House of the contents of his pockets, including a ticket to the East. He made his complaint, and the authorities have been on the lookout for the public. robber. Yesterday afternoon, a man who gives the name of James Williams, was aught by Cruz, with the stolen ticket in his possession. He had $150 in coin, and some pipes. He claims to have bought the ticket from a scalper. At present the smiling Cruz is investigating this story, and looking for the old man, who has apparently dis-appeared.

A WATCH-GRABBER. About 3 p.m. yesterday, a tough went into James Noel's saloon, c42 N. Main, and grabbed the barkeeper's watch, with which pranoed the barkeeper's watch, with which he escaped. Cruz was summoned, and finally found his man in an outhouse back of the vile dive where, Hargarita Granillo recently murdered her paramour, Andreas Martinez. The fellow, who gave the name of Brownie, was locked up. He had the watch—a nickel affair, with gold chain and chaim.

The San Joaquin Rancho Sold to the Southern Pacific.

The Trues is informed by authority that the famous San Joaquin Rancho, chief part the ramous San Joaquin Rancho, chief part of the great estates in Los Angeles county left by the late James Irvine, of San Fran-cisco, has been sold to the Southern Pacific Railroad Company. The price is given as $400,000. William II. Mills, land agent of the Southern Pacific, concluded the pur-chase for the company while down here a few days ago, making the final arrange. chase for the company while down here a few days ago, making the final arrangements by telegraph. This rancho, one of the largest in the county, lies next south of the Sanitago de Santa Ana, and Tustin City laps over one edge of it. It is supposed that the purchase eas to do with the railroad tangle at Santa Ana between the Southern Pacific and the A., T. & S. F. It has been rumored several times that the Southern Pacific had bought the rancho and would prevent its great competitor from crossing it. First Vice-President and General Manager C. W. Smith, of the A., T. & S. F., when here a few weeks ago, said that the purchase of this rancho by the Southern Pacific could not in any way interfere with the crossing of it by his road. He had the matter already satisfactorily adjusted.

"AH," THERE!

Sixteen Mongolian Tan-players Cap-tured by Police. At about 9 o'clock last evening, Officer

Fred Smith was the best looking Chinama ever seen on the streets of Los Angeles. He looked as though he might be the personal owner of the Six Companies, all and several His highly celestial mien overawed the guard who stood at the portals of Ah Sam's trebly-fortified tan-game of Nigger alley, and Smith was allowed to walk in unquestioned. Smith was allowed to walk in unquestioned. Once inside, he took his bearings promptly, and summoned his friends—Chief Skinner, Capt. Tyler, Officers Gus Smith, Lynch and Methyin. Before one of the astounded Mongols could escape the strong arm of the law was on every one. Sixteen gamblers were marched to the police station, where they gave 16 "Ahs," with individual suffixes. The dealer, Ah Tan, was called upon for $100 ball, and the other 15 for $40 each. Ah Sam, the supposed proprietor of the game, put up the necessary $700 in good gold coin, and bailed them all out.

An East Side Bank.

East Los Angeles is to have a bank. It will be known as The Citizens' Bank and will be located in a new brick building especially erected for it on Downey avenue received for it on howney avenue.
The capital stock is $50,000 and the officers as follows; William Vickery, president; William Embody, cashier; Thomas Meredith, vice-president. The new safe has arrived and will be in place in a few days. The bank will probably be opened March 1st.

Alameda Street Spring Longer in Use-Description of the New System and Some Idea of its

The old pumps in what was formerly known as the Beaudry Water Works and more recently the works of the Citizens', Water Company, on Alameda street, did. their last pumping Sunday. Yesterday the new pumps, just south of the covered reser-voir, in the northside hills, were started up. The transition was a rapid one, and it The transition was a rapid one, and it needed to be, for a great many people are dependent upon the system for their water-supply and they could not afford to dispense with it even for a day. Besides this Mr. Wicks's lease of the Alameda-street property expired January 28th, and notice was served upon him by Mr. Beandry, that he served upon him by Mr. Beandry, that he erved upon him by Mr. Beaudry that he must vacate the premises within 10 days or his agreement would be considered for-

The steam bollers and pipes were removed from the old pumping works to the new location and put into service again, but the old pumps were dispensed with in favor of a couple of bran-new Worthington double-acting pumps of large capacity. A mere shed covers the pumping works now, but a building 300 feet square is to be erected over them. The old pumps will be reamed out and built over, and one will probably be sold and the other sent up to the head of the water supply on the Feliz ranch, to serve as a "relay"—which is to say, if anything happens to the head of the ditch, so that the water does not enter it, this pmmp will be used in elevating water from the river bed to supply the system.

Under the new arrangement the supply is brought from the city's main ditch, near its head, in a 13-inch iron pipe, for a distance of 20,000 feet—about 3½ miles. It delivers the water by gravitation at a point near the covered reservoir, at an elevation of 417 feet above the datum plain.

There are to be three distinct systems of distribution suited to as many elevations. The first or lowest service receives the water as delivered by the main supply pipe, the system being entirely by gravitation. In the second the water is forced by pumps up to the covered reservoir, which is 40 feet higher, or 457 feet above the datum plane. One pumping station serves for both reservoirs. A survey of the city is being made to determine the proper adjustment of the distributing pipes for the various levels.

The covered reservoir, which was the main distributing reservoir of the Beaudry system, is to be enlarged to a capacity of 2,500,600 gallons. The new reservoir on Angeleno Heights, now in course, of construction, will hold 3,500,000 gallons.

The system of water works has been extended and amplified to a great extent since Mr. Wicks purchased it less than a year ago. Then there were 66,000 feet of distributing mains; now there are 190,000 feet of mains, all of castiron. The work of extending the service and increasing the facilities for sup cents.

Mr. Wicks thinks that the city should be the owner of all the water works within the orate limits, and he giverate opinion that if the corporate limits, and he gives it as modeliberate opinion that if the supply were thus owned and distributed at fair rates, enough revenue could be derived from it to pay the entire municipal expenses, leaving the people practically free from city taxes.

Runaway on Second Street.

About four o'clock yesterday afternoon an expressman backed his team up to the sidewalk in front of 'Hollenbeck block, Second Street, and went upstairs to get a trunk. No sooner had he got well off the street than the horses started off for a wild run. They the horses started off for a wild run. They turned towards Spring street, and, near the corner, collided with a milk wagon, smashing both vehicles into smithereens. The milkman was thrown out and considerably bruised about the head. An iron spring, used to fasten the tail board of one of the wagons, was driven entirely through the muscle of a foreleg of one of the express team and was broken off. The horses never stopped at the scene of the wreck. The runaway team belongs to Nick Covarrubias. Mr. Kuhrts moved that the city do not enter into Kuhrts-street bridge contract till the money be paid in to the full amount required. Mr. Stearns thought this equivalent to indefinite postponement; that the street-car company should contribute a share, and, being on a prominent city street, the citizens along it ought not be asked to pay the remainder over the amount already appropriated by the city, and moved to amend Kuhrts's motion by appropriating $4000 from salary fund for the purpose. MEDICAL INHALATION COMBINED WITH CONSTITUTIONAL REMEDIES.

Medical Inhalation is simply and solely a method of taking medicines by inhaling or breathing them into the lungs, instead of swallowing them into the stomach. By Inhalation, the proper medicines are applied directly to the seat of the disease, in the nose, throat or lungs; and it is clear to every reasoning person how peculiarly applicable Inhalation is in the disorders of the organs named. If you have scalded or burned the surface of the body, or wounded any limb or member, you do not swallow the remedy intended to heal the disorganized tissue. On the contrary, you apply it directly to the seat of the wound or injury. Why, then, when suffering from catarrh of the nasal passages or throat, or afflicted with ulceration of the lungs, should you rely on medicines taken into the stomaph? Medical inhalation not only applies the proper healing remedies to the seat of the disease, but it applies the emedy in the gaseous or vaporous form, in which form, as is well known, medicines act most powerfully. How much greater, for example, is the effect of a drachm of chloroform, when inhaled or breathed, than many times the quantity when swallowed into the stomach. The same is true of chlorine, of todine, and of many ofther substances. By inhalation the medicine is not poured into the stomach, and thence son wandering through the system in searchly a local one; but by this method the proper remedy when any other substances and the substances of the correct and rational method of treatment? Who, on the other hand, can be sol trational and to luceration of the healing medicine by inhalation to the diseased parts, is the correct and rational method of treatment? Who, on the other hand, can be so irrational as to believe that the proper and direct way to reach the diseased surfaces of the air-passages, in this case, is by the way of the stomach? Physiology teaches us that the membrane, or sakin, lining the air-passages of the nose, throat and lungs, demonstrates, beyond all question, that the true scientific typathent of the bod

To such an extent is this true that no patient should intrust his cise to any phy-sician who is not well prepared and thoroughly equipped with everything necessary for the administering of the proper remedies by the method of Inhalation.

equipped with everything necessary for the administering of the proper remedies by the method of Inhalation.

The numerous cures effected by Inhalation in cases seemingly past all help, and the uniform success attending its use in discases of the respiratory organs, renders it obligatory on every honest physician to at once apply himself to gain a practical knowledge of the inhilation, or, if that is not possible, he is at least bound to decline to treat such cases.

Among the most eminent physicians of the age who are fully awakened to the value of Medical Inhalation in these diseases are the following: The celebrated Dr. Burdon-Saunderson; Dr. La Roche, of the Paris Academy of Medical Inhalation in these diseases are the following: Dr. Frederick Langhaus, of Berlin; Drs. Klebs and Tommasi-Crudeli; Sir Archibaid Dickson, of Edinburgh, Scotland; Dr. Eichler, Dr. Cameron, Dr. Gurdon Buck, Prof. Albert Lehert, the celebrated Dr. Hughlings Jackson, the venerable Dr. Robert Dickinson, Prof. Thierfelder, Spencer Wells, Dr. Hilton Flagge, Dr. G. P. Wood, Drs. Fritsch and Hitzig, Dr. Fothergill, Dr. Richard Thompson, Dr. R. S. Carpenter, Drs. Anste, Ball, Fuller, Lancercaux, Krauss, Huguenie, Heller, Orth, Corrigan, Fenwick and many others. With scarcely a single exception every medical authority of eminence recognizes the wonderful potency of this new method, and the coming generation of physicians here and there who have made "Diseases of Respiration" a life study that are fitted in any way to employ the wonderful resources of Medical Inhalation in the cure of these diseases.

For five years the celebrated Dr. I. H. Bennet was pathologist to the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh, and in his great work on "Consumption" he makes the following statement: "During this period I made upwards of 2000 post-mortem examinations of persons dying from various diseases, and I was constantly meeting with cases in which I found cavities in the lungs from consumption, which had evidently healed up or cicatrized years before the death of the subject. Nature did not seem to have been successful in restoring the wasted lung-substance, but the cavities were dried up, the progress of the disease arrested, and the subject lived for years, with diminished lung power it is true, but otherwise in good health."

SORE SHOULDERS.

S THERE NO SALVATION FOR BRICK-YARD HORSES?

Venerable Case at Last Come to Trial, and Some Remarkabl Information is Afforded Abou Horses and Their Treatment.

The venerable case of The People vs. homas Goss, for cruelty to a horse, after five or six peculiar postponements, came to trial yesterday before Justice Taney. If was originated September 5, 1886. Defendant owns a brickyard on ena Vista street, and is a member of the City Council. He is an old resident, and a tender-hearted man by general agreement. The affairs of the brickyard are left, however, in the charge of ployés, and abuses sometimes arise st fall the attention of the Human Society was called to the sickeningly sore shoulders with which some of the horses at the "mud-mills" are worked. They spoke to Mr. Goss, who said he knew the shoulders were sore, and that they looked so sickening that he could bear to look at them; but that they looked so sickening that he could never bear to look at them; but that it was impossible to work horses at those mills without making their shoulders sore. The best he could do was to give the horses a vacation when they got too bad. He did lay off two at the complaint of the Society.

Dr. Dorothea Lummis, secretary of the Humane Society, and M. V. Wright, the special officer thereof, testified that they had carefully examined the horse specifically, complained of, and found an ulcerated sore, as large around as a half-dollar and quarter of an inch deep, on its shoulder. There was a great mass of pus on the collar. They deemed it cruel to work an animal in such a condition.

Joe Mullally thought it didn't hurt horses much to work them with sore shoulders. It hurt them in the morning, but as soon as they get warmed up they don't mind it. Had worked horses in a brickyard here 30 years, and found it almost impossible to keep them from getting sore shoulders. Had one horse that knew enough to stop and back every few minutes, so that the cool air got in under the collar and it didn't get sore shoulders. Knew Goss wouldn't be knowingly cruel to anything. Had frequently exchanged horses with Goss to rest the sore ones. Knew nothing of condition of horse complained of. If as witnesses stated would probably have laid such a horse off if it was his.

An ex-foreman of Goss's, named Tice, testified that Goss took the very would probably have laid such a horse off if it was his.

An ex-foreman of Goss's, named Tice, testified that Goss took the very best care of his animals. It was impossible to prevent sore shoulders without changing horses every day or two. Some might call it cruel to work such a horse, and some might not.

Contractor Bowman said it was impossible to work horses there without making their shoulders sore. Goss wouldn't be willfully cruel. If you work a sore-shouldered horse right along it doesn't hurt him at all, but if you put him in the stable to rest, it makes him worse. Don't think the horse was unfit for labor. Have used worse myself. It isn't cruel, but looks bad. I wouldn't have laid the horse off, but might have put cold water on his shoulder.

Thomas Goss, defendant, said he had off, but might have put cold water on his shoulder.

Thomas Goss, defendant, said he had lived here for 11 years, and had been a brickmaker for 30. Couldn't remember that he had ever had a horse whose shoulders had not become sore, and had never seen but two. Has had an arrangement ever since he came here, whereby Mr. Weston took his horses to the ranch and doctored them when they got too bad. Told Wright if he'd invent any collar or contrivance that would keep the horses' shoulders from getting sore one year, he'd give $150 for it. Meant it. Didn't believe he had personally looked at his horses three for it. Meant it. Didn't believe he had personally looked at his horses three times during all last summer. The employés, however, had orders to lay them off when they got too sore, and he left it to them. Had he known the horse was not in a fit condition to be worked, he would have laid it off. When notified by Wright, did not examine the horses, but ordered two laid off. Didn't remember that Wright had again complained to him that any horse was unfit to be worked. Didn't know if the horse mentioned in the complaint was laid off.

was laid off.

A female of Milesian extraction gave some irrelevant evidence.

John Weston, defendant's half brother, testified that for ten years he had been caring for Goss's sore horses, and sending fresh ones in their places.

cost to the brickyard about once a week to get disabled horses.

E. Simons, defendant's partner, said he had been in the business 12 years. It was impossible to work the horses without making their shoulders sore. The men are ordered to change them where they get too sore. We never parsonally ingreet, it is left wholly where they get too sore. We never personally inspect. It is left wholly to the discretion of our employes. Didn't take enough interest in the matter to personally examine the horse specifically complained of, even after Mr. Goss was arrested.

The condition of the horse was not denied by any witness.

denied by any witness.

Assistant District Attorney Denis

Assistant District Attorney Denis made no argument.

Judge Chapman, who appeared for Goss, claimed that the cruelty must be unnecessary and malicious. Mr. Goss had known nothing of it, and there was no intention of cruelty.

Justice Taney discharged the prisoner.

A suggestion was made to Messrs. Goss & Simons that they might profit by the example of the one wise horse above mentioned, and might have their drivers stop the horses for a second every few minutes and let the air in on their shoulders, which would prevent them from becoming sore. Both said that this would be quite impossible.

Los Angeles in the Legislature—What the Capital Needs. SACRAMENTO, Feb. 5.—[Correspondnce of THE TIMES.] It has been raining here continuously since Thursday night and the farmers, and many others are happy. To an adopted californian, whose ideas of the Golden State are based on what Los Angeles offers, it seems that this town needs something besides rain to make it happy.

It is the most like what was expected of California towns in the East of any place I have seen, as to its backward-ness in all moral reforms, but it lacks the old push and go that was looked for ness in all moral reforms, but it lacks the old push and go that was looked for then.

Low and flat, half its houses a whole story below the grade, where the street has been built up above them, and the other half run up high and narrow, in a vain attempt to get up above the malaria, it does not present a very attractive appearance. Its lots are narrow, only 20 feet wide, and nearly all the houses are crowded close up to the street, only leaving room for the flight of stairs which leads up, often from the very gate to the front door, for no one dares live any nearer the ground. Beside these stairs is a walk and a narrow spot covered with green mold, which testifies to the healthfulness, or the reverse, of the locality.

Even the trunks of trees and roofs of houses are in many cases covered with

Even the trunks of trees and roofs of houses are in many cases covered with a bright green moss.

The most amusing thing to a stranger here is the quick and strong jealousy of Los Angeles, which pops up to the surface on the slightest provocation, and generally takes the form of a crying down of the city and its boom. It was very entertaining to see this crop up in the Assembly the other day when Knox, of Los Angeles, was called to order for advertising his city, but, of course, this town was not responsible for that.

By the way, the Los Angeles members of both houses make themselves felt. "It is the strongest delegation from any part of the State," said a visitor to the Legislature the other day, in my hearing.

visitor to the Legislature the other day, in my hearing.
Lieut.-Gov. Waterman's ability as a presiding officer has not been very apparent. Indeed, it has been positively painful sometimes to watch his attempts to master parliamentary usage. Stehpen M. White, of Los Angeles, is in the chair nearly all the time of late.

Speaker Jordan in the Assembly is is in the chair nearly all the time of late.

Speaker Jordan, in the Assembly, is a model as a presiding officer. His rulings are quickly made in a manner that leaves no doubt as to his knowledge or ability, and in a voice that is clearly heard at all times without the necessity of a painful effort at listening on the part of his auditors, as has been the case with the speaker of the other house.

Both houses are getting down to work now, and the Assembly file is a long and ever-increasing document. The San Francisco delegation, which, by the way, is not remarkable for brains as a whole, moves to adjourn by Friday noon of each week, and that not prevailing, get leave of absence and go up to the city.

Messrs. Pendleton, Scott and Dam-ron were appointed tellers. The first ballot resulted as follows:

A. W. Hutton was declared elected.
Many of Mr. O'Melveny's friends, understanding that the two receiving the highest number of votes were to be the choice of the meeting, and that their candidate was therefore safe, went away. It was decided, however, that there must be a majority in each case. The result of the second ballot was:

Round-trip tickets from Los Angeles, $1 only.

Free lunch will be served to all visitors in one of the oak groves in Monrovia, and all will be given a free ride through, around and among the orange groves of the great foothill fruit belt of the San Gabriel Valley. Monrovia is only eight months old, and already boasts of a population of 500 inhabitants. The new through-line of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroad is now being built through the place. Don't miss the opportunity. The excursion train will leave the Downey-avenue depot at 9:30 o'clock a.m., sharp, and return at 6 p.m., thus giving the entire day in Monrovia.

This is no auction mushroom boom, nor is it calculated to do other than present to the public Monrovia in its everyday attire, and insure to all a good and pleasant day in this most beautiful town.

THE purported "special dispatch' the Los Angeles Tribune of yesterday (Monday), describing the snowstorm of Saturday in San Francisco, was not telegraphed to that paper at all but was taken almost word for word from the Evening Bulletin of Saturday, which reached here by mail on Sunday. THE TIMES had the storm news in detail on Sunday morning.

THE great strike in New York goes on. More and more workmen have no grievance are ordered out of employment every day. But the process must inevitably defeat itself, for while the number of idlers to be supported by those still at work constantly increases, the number of the supporting workers steadily diminishes. This is the felo de se outcome which Powderly long since understood, and therefore always advised against strikes.

nificent and important enterprises that tend to make Los Angeles what she is today—the central point of interest in California-is the newly-built electric road, which has been so successfully put in operation within a few weeks Running far out into the suburbs, be yond the strictly peopled portions of the city, it brings within a convenient distance of the city's business center as fine an outlying section of country as could be desired by those coming here in search of homes. The section is beautifully deversified. There are broad and sweeping plains with rich and fertile acres; there are beautiful. undulating fields, dotted here and there by the new homes that have just been built; there are newly-opened streets, leading up to pleasant mesa lands; far away over the rounded hills is seen the rising tower of the Belmont, and the green groves of the eucalypti, and lines of pepper trees, with fine residences dotting the heights. From this line also will be seen the new Baptist College, whose corner-stone was laid on Thursday, all its proportions standing out plainly to view. The eye takes in also the grand valley sweep lying along the base of the Santa Monica Mountains and extending to the sea. The mountain view is one of rare beauty. Beyond the plains they lift themselves showing every cañoned deep, each slope and sierra-like Behind them, in the purpling distance is seen here and there an overtopping height of the San Fernando range, with heads resting upon the sky.

As the electric cars glide swiftly and unjarringly over the rails the traveler catches the sea-breeze which comes up delightfully cool to meet him. It is suggestive of commerce and opulent traffic, and of an incoming tide of immigration. It is suggestive, also, of the not distant future when all these broad and sunny acres, rich in fertile soil, shall be a portion of the city, a populous center of beautiful homes.

In riding over the road on Thursday the writer could but anticipate the changes that four or five years will bring. Then, this section will no longer be a rural district. It will be longer be a rural district. It will be linked by continuous improvements to the metropolis itself, and form no unimportant part of it. The law of growth. which tends to the westward, will hold good here. Los Angeles is just as surely destined to occupy all of this territory as is the sun to shine tomorrow. The electric and cable roads of Los Angeles will be among the large factors that contribute to her growth, for they virtually wipe out distance and men can come and go along their lines without let or hindrance. Their business interests do not have to suffer on account of distance, for the electric forces are swift steeds and always ready for action. Wherever these roads are built population is sure to follow. And improvements go along with it. There is room in this direction not only for busy streets and active thoroughfares, but for varied industries-room for every kind of growth for elegant and costly homes, for parks and gardens, with all that make up the beautiful and attractive surroundings of a great city.

The further you go out along this line the nearer you approach the sea. To those who are fond of the sea this will be a charm. For those who love the mountains, the mountains are near enough to attract them. Their lights and shadows and dissolving views are always before them. For those who love the plains, the plains expand, with here and there a rising swell or treeall of these will our new roads bring people, and thus add to the wealth and the population of Los Angeles. Among the thousands of people that have ridden over our cable and electric roads within the past fev weeks, there are a large number that have an eye to business and to home building. The country along thes roads is carefully scanned. The most desirable home sites are spied out, and business and capital are not blind to the chances to be secured. Four or five years will see Los Angeles wonderfully expanded, and her rapid expansion will be due in no small degree to the unflagging and public-spirited enterprise that has secured to her her cable and electric roads, and placed her in the front with the few great cities which have like improvements.

Southern California is becoming so much of a home-building and fruit-grow ing country that her once broad stock ranges are gradually being absorbed and the stockman steadily pushed back into the foothills or into the Territories. The needs of this country in the matter of live stock demand more and more that closer and better systems of cult ure be resorted to; that breeds be improved; that the practice of soiling be more generally adopted; that alfalfa be made the great stand-by of the grower; that, in short, the business be so conducted as to make one acre pro duce as much beef or milk as fifty acres produced under the old and wasteful system of wild-cattle growing. Let these and other reforms be introduced ance to an old veteran no longer able to

The Newspaper as an Educat

Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D. D. delivered before a session of the Insti-tute of Civics in Beston, last month, an address on "The Education of an American Citizen," which is full of good thoughts. Touching upon the well-worn theme of newspapers and the part they play in public education, he has this to say:

well-worn theme of newspapers and the part they play in public education, he has this to say:

And here I may name next the newspaper as a text-book, coming in fresh once a day, or once a week, in the great school of the citizen—a school which is always open, and which need have no holidays. It is easy-to deride the newspapers. They find holes each in the other's armor, and they are very fond of showing how it would be possible to improve the press of the nation, in all which mutual censure there is much truth—very much. But the central truth is here—that the people of America have understood that everything done by their government must be openly done. They have established their newspapers that they may know the history of each day as it goes by. This was what they wanted; this is what they have gained. The result, as we see it today, would have been called impossible by John Adams or by Franklin or by Morris or by Washington, by any of the statesmen of 100 years ago, even those who looked forward most hopefully into the future. The man who reads the average daily newspaper of America carefully, who preserves in order its more important matters of history or of social order, reads in a year more which is of import for the duty of a citizen than the greatest statesman of the sixteenth or seventeenth centuries read in 10 years or could read. Burleigh or Davison, Sully, Richelieu or Mazarin, Nay, Turgot, Colbert or Necker, Walpole or Pitt had not at command such resources for forming an opinion in statecraft as the file of a great daily journal affords. And as to the number of students in this school, let it be remembered that the daily paper presents itself everywhere. It will be read. You shall not escape it. To show how far its power goes as an instructor take its work on a single day. The number of votes given two years ago for Mr. Cleveland, Mr. Blaine and the other candidates for the Presidency in New England was about 730,000. A return made for me by competent persons, with a good deal of care, assures we abstract, but rather attributes to it force as it appeals to a sense of justice in the hearts of its readers. He says: In the hearts of its readers. He says:

But it is well worthy of note that the public, in its decisions, is very little influenced by the leading articles in the journals. It takes the facts which the daily press collects for it, but seems to be very indifferent to its counsels. Thus Gen. Butler was elected Governor of Massachusetts in a year when not a single paper in the Commonwealth advocated his election. It is an amusing though not important fact that in the next year, when his friends had obtained the support of one newspaper of obtained the support of one newspaper of large circulation, he was defeated. The elections in the city of New York show that some of the journals of the largest circulation in the world have an influence absclutely inconsiderable on the vote as it appears in the elections.

This confirms the theory hitherto advanced in these columns, that a newspaper has power only as it reaches the great public conscience, and it can reach that only by being conscientious and upright in its own principles.

THE San Francisco Chronicle thinks that "the proposed cooperative colony in Los Angeles county ought to be a success, if it is properly managed There is no good reason why people who wish to found a modern Utopia should feel called upon to go into a Mexican State to carry out their plans. when better land and better facilities may be obtained near a good market. This colony is said to be projected by those who have grown dis love the heights, the hills rise, and the Topolobampo colony. Certainly, if pleasant mesas overlook the plains. To better chance of ultimate success than the Sinaloa scheme, for it will be under a stable government, and the colonists will be secure in the possession of their rights. The Topolobampo colony has gained many and valuable conces-sions from the Mexican government, but these are only for 10 years. After that time they must be prepared to endure forced levies and other ingenious methods of taxation adopted by Mexican Governors." It is, in short, perfectly safe to assert that there is nothing in Mexico which a sane colonist wants, or can get, which he cannot find better and more easily in California.

HANDRILLS of a highly inflamed color are out for the "second grand excursion to San José and the Santa Clara Valley," "the Paradise of Central California" and "the garden of the world." These seductive advertise ments were probably printed before the late snow-storm. They need a P. S., not to say a nota bene, for the information of the tourists to this up-country paredise: Be sure to provide yourselves with snow-shoes!

Thus far, since the last rainfall commenced, we have had in this vicinity a a couple of inches of moisture; and the outlook indicates more of the same sort before the weather clears up These showers are most opportune and will go a long way towards dispelling the fear of a dry season and putting the country "square on its pins," so to speak. The southern march of progress will not be arrested.

AN FRANCISCO, Feb 7.—[By the sociated Press.] The Examiner's Washton special says: "The Inter-state Comgton special says; "The Inter-state Com-ission will, it is known, be named in a w days. The President has already de-ied whom to appoint, and has addressed ters to those he has selected king their acceptance. The names a said, with seeming au-g authority, to be included in the following named list: Allen G. Thurman, of Ohio; William Windom, of Minnesota; Thomas M. Cooley, of Michigan; Franci C. Kernan, Jr., of New York; Gen. James Wilson, of Delaware; James Melton nith, of Georgia; John F. Swift, of Cal-Ifornia; William T. Coleman, of California; Mr. Clark, of Boston: Five men will be selected from the above list. There on to believe that letters have already is reason to believe that letters have already been sent to five of them, and upon their acceptance the nominations will be sent to the Senate. Allen G. Thurman will be chairman of-the Commission if he will accept. Some time ago he asked the President to appoint his son, Allen G. Thurman, to the office of Commissioner in case the bill passed. The President thinks, however, that the old gentleman is the man the country has the most confidence in. The only New Yorker who will get a place is a Democrat. He is Francis Kernan, Jr., son of the ex-United States Senator from New York. He is a man of 40 years or so, and was appointed Railroad Commissioner of that State by the President when he was Governor. Then Kernan was very young, but he made a good record and his record has made the President proud of him. He has applied for the appointment, and there is no doubt of his acceptance. His profession is that of an engineer. It seems necessary and natural that there should be a man from the Paclie coast on the Cammission, but the President finds it difficult to make a selection. Those who are mentioned are as near the happy mean as can be found, and are regarded as fair and honest men. Swift is a Republican, and he is likely to get the place only in case Cooley or Windom should decline. There is no certainty of either accepting, as they have not been consulted."

The Hawaiian government does not object to this amendgovernment does not object to this amendment because it is opposed to ceding any of its territory to the United States; on the contrary it would be very glad to make the concession but for the fact that there are doubts of its acceptance by the House of Representatives. The simple renewal of the existing treaty for a period of seven years would not require any legislation by the House. The concurrence of the Senate would be sufficient, but if this amendment should be agreed to it is claimed that legislation would be required by the House to make the treaty operative. Without discussing the merits of this technical proposition, it is stated that the King will not risk the possibility of the rejection of this important concession. It is said that he President will send a message to the Senate advising a renewal of the treaty for a period of three years."

THE FISHERY TROUBLE.

Secretary Manning Strongly Favors
Retaliatory Measures.
WASHINGTON. Feb. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] Secretary Manning has sent to Perry Belmont, chairman of the House mmittee on Foreign Affairs, a long and refully prepared reply to the request of at committee for his views with regard to the House and Senate Retaliation Bills, and for any suggestions that he may desire to make with reference to them. After discussing the fishery clauses of the different treaties with Great Britain, the Secretary comes to the conclusion that as Canada has suspended hospitality and privileges to American vessels, the United States should respond by a like suspension. The Secretary then submits the draft of a bill entitled "An act to enable the President to defend and protect the rights and privileges of vessels of the United States." The bill provides that whenever the President shall be satisfied that vessels of the United States are, by British or Canadian authority, denied any rights or privileges to which they are entitled, he shall, in his discretion, lawfully close by proclamation all ports of the United States against all vessels owned by subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, except such as are in distress. Vessels violating this provision shall be seized and forfeited. Persons violating any proclamation made in pursuance of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $1000, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both. The bill also provides the House and Senate Retaliation Bills, and deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $1000, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both. The bill also provides for the appointment of a commissioner, whose duty it shall be take testimony relative to losses and injuries inflicted since December 31, 1885, by British authorities upon citizens of the United States engaged in the fisheries on the northeast coast of British North America.

DON'T WANT TO BE CONSOLIDATED.

Representative Henley received a telegram from Surveyor-General Hammond asking him to use his influence against the asking him to use his influence against the passage of that clause in the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation Bill which provides for the consolidation of the offices of Surveyor-Generals and the abolition of those offices in 1889. The plan proposed for the consolidation is to combine the offices of Surveyor-General of California and Nevada, and when all the Surveyor-General offices are abolished the business will be transacted at Washington. This could be conveniently and economically done so far as agricultural entries are concerned, but in the case of mining entries the abolition of the position of Surveyor-General would work great injustice and serious delays. Representative Henley will oppose it and it will be resisted in the Senate.

There seems to be a legion of candidates in California in both parties for appointment on the Interstate Commerce Commission. Democrats and Republicans are impetuously rushing to the front. Senator Williams says he thinks 25 Republicans have applied through him for the place, and Mr. Henley says there are nearly as many-Democrats. ZITKA

Will Carleton's Last Work, and the Romance of It.

The name of Will Carleton has become a familiar word to all readers of latter-day poetry, and when his death by his own hand was made known, many a heart was saddened by the thought that the brain which had given us many bright gems was gone forever. Although not a playwright, he had made several adaptations, which had met with success, and this inspired him with the idea to write a truly great play. During the last year that he lived, he was wholly engrossed upon a work of which his nearest friends knew not the object and when at his death the manuscript of Zitka was found among his effects it was first discovered that his endeavors had been centered upon its completion. This with a few other partially finished articles of poetry and prose comprised all of the bright author's legacy to his little daughter, Marie. Kind friends, cared for the little one, and among them was H. C. Miner, the manager of the People's Theater, New York. Learning of the existence of Zitka, Mr. Miner determined to give the play a New York production in the hope that its success might bring something to the little one. After weeks of careful preparation and an extensive outlay for accessories, it was brought out and its marked success was the result. After a run in New York it was placed upon the road, Mr. Miner glying to the child Marie a handsome sum for its exclusive control. Mr. Miner has no reason to regret his benevolent act, for financial success has attended Zitka everywhere. The press is loud in its praise and the San Francisco Post proclaims it to be "the strongest play that has been given the American stage for a year, with the single exception of Jim, the Penman.

Zitka will place more laurels in the crown of poor Will Carleton and give to little Marie a comfortable fortune. Its plot is drawn on bold lines which one can only imagine as emanating from a brain like Carleton's, and Mr. Miner has given to the which had given us many bright gems was gone forever. Although not a playwright imagine as emanating from a brain like Carleton's, and Mr. Miner has given to the play a cast fully equal to the several trying roles. The Los Angeles public will beyond a doubt be more than favorably impressed by this, the work of one of America's favorite authors.

The California Co-operative Colony Still Moving.

In accordance with announcement by THE TIMES, a large number of those in-terested in the California Co-operative Colony, brayed the most leave Colony, braved the mud last evening and met in Board of Trade Hall. George Rice presided. The Committee on Location, reported progress through Col. Atwater, the chairman. Ralph E. Hoyt, chairman of the Committee on Organization, read over the bylaws formulated by the committee, and already fully published in The TIMES. The bylaws were gone through with seriatim, with very lively discussion all around, and many amendments being sug-gested. Four or five of the more important bylaws were laid over till the next meeting, for riper consideration. Numerous bylaws were adopted, others rejected and others amended.

were adopted, others rejected and others amended.

Here a grave legal snag was struck. One of the provisions of the bylaws is that no colonist shall hold more than four shares. The question was raised whether, under a corporation, a colonist could legally be prevented from selling his four shares to another colonist; and in fact, whether they could keep a millionaire from obtaining a controlling interest. A special committee of three, consisting of Raiph E. Hoyt, John Robson and O. H. Violet, was appointed to consult attorneys on this important point, and report at the next meeting. The feeling of the meeting was that if this obstacle to incorporation cannot be overcome, the colony need not incorporate, but go ahead under an agreement.

The meeting then adjourned to 7:30 Thursday evening, at the same place.

A Suppressed Wayfarer.

At the northern point of the tract formerly known as the Beaudry grove, on Saturday night during the heavy rains which softened the earth and loosened the posts, the high, tight-board fence suddenly fell over on the sidewalk upon a passer-by, who was almost completely flattened out, but was able to call for help. Eight men were necessary to lift the fence and drag out the man, who was badly bruised.

The Work of Searching for Victims of the White River Disaster Still Going Forward— How the Scene of the Frightful Affair Appears.

By Telegrowh to The Times.

New York, Feb. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] The river fronts and the neighboring streets presented a Sunday appearance this morning. Monday is usually the busiest day of the week at the docks, but not more than a quarter of the usual line of trucks which block and choke South and West streets were out. Most of the piers were open to receive freight, but little came as compared with ante-strike times. The prospect of a settlement of the difficulties is remote, each side being confider of coming out of the trouble the victor. Both sides promise remarkable developments this week, but their intimations are dark in their nature.

On the Clyde line dock, East River, the Clyde sailed some hours later than her schedule time, but carried a full cargo and her quota of passengers. The Seminole, of this line, also carried a full cargo and her quota of passengers. The superintendent declared he was getting along very well. Men who applied for work at the Mallory line dock are being turned away by the hundred. Another steamer is expected today, and there are plenty of men ready to work on her. The Ward line dock is clear of freight, and deserted. Two boats are expected today or tomorrow, and then the company will have plenty of freight being delivered, and the whole bulkhead was lined with trucks. The New Haven freight line and the Hartford line were doing more business than on Saturday also.

Thus far no bodies have een recovered. Nearly all signs of the ter rible disaster have disappeared, except the gaping splice between the piers of the bridge. Trains are running regularly to either end of the bridge. The condition of the wounded is about the same.

"What things?" I asked.

"Well, carpets and a bedroom set and dresses and hats for me and the girls and slippers and a dressing-gown for you."

"All right," I replied. "How many hogs' worth is it that you want?"

"Unst what do you mean by such talk?"

"Just what you do when you ask the Chinaman 'how many eggs worth his cabbage is?" That is what our canch is doing for us, and now just as 'thas commenced to pour its riches 'nto our laps you want to go back on 1. our best friend. I must confess, wife, I don't see it. Once we didn't have any ranch, nor hogs, nor eggs, nor hats, nor money, and how I did suffer for the want of a dressing-gown! Do you want to go back to those desolate days when I was an editor, and the miserable contemporary across the way, who was worse off than I, said my 'only food was printer's pi, and, therefore, was not to be blamed for my ideas on religion." Then I wanted slippers or boots, or anything to wear out on him and to keep my feet from the ground. I guess I'll drive out the hogs and steers to-morrow, and get those 'things,' and keep the ranch." Real-estate men and others have their eyes on Compton and others have their eyes on Compton and surrounding country. Already, in an unguarded moment, they have fixed their talons on the beautiful valley of Gardena, a portion of our fair domain, and the boom is so epidemic there now that we can only hope to confine it within its present bounds. Gardena is only two miles west of Compton and our citizens on est of Compton, and our citizens on he stable lands between here and there must be on guard, for this is our "cit-

Attempts are made to depreciate our lands, that we may be induced to sell. Now, right here, let us talk over this alkali question. We know more about that than anybody else, for we have had more to do with it. We have learned to respect it, and look upon it as one of the chief elements of richness in our soil. There are patches where the earth is too impregnated with it to be available at present for general farming. The same may be said of our barnyards, with superabundance of fertilizers. These patches are distributed more or less from the sea to the mountains, and are reservoirs containing a sch fertilizare reservoirs containing a sich fertiliz-ing compound of salt, alkali and many other mineral solubles. The soil of our valleys and plains being loose, it is distributed by seepage and thus it is present in all of our land, and Compton, as well as all of this moist thus it is present in all of our land, and Compton, as well as all of this moist land belt, reaching from Westminister to La Ballona, is especially favored by having more than an average of this precious compound. When this country was first broken up much of the land for a few years was useless. So was the old sheep corral on my ranch, but cultivation and manipulation has made both productive. Now, my friends, without going into a learned dissertation on this subject — and I could not do that anyway—we know a great many things, learned by experience. In this way we have reached results and we kaze the scientist to trail on the path.

We know that every plowing and every load of barnyard manure and any general cultivation given these lands neutralizes or destroys the akali bad patches are growing less and less, alfalfa fields, our orchards and sleek they are the products of alkali land.

General Passenger Agent Ruggles, of the Michigan Central Railroad, had his picture taken the other day. While he was "sitting" his face suddenly assumed a most serious aspect. His eyes seemed to retreat to the back of his head, his lower jaw fell upon his cravat, and an ominous scowl spread_itself over his high forehead. The photographer, seeing that something had to be done to relieve his victim of the

The furrows in the big railroad man's forehead were erased, his eyes came back to their accustomed place, and the lower jaw crashed against its mate with such force that the lips spread out into a smile of ineffable sweetness. Before the reaction set in the skillful photographer had the charming face stamped upon the lenses of his machine.

Henry Georgeism.

[Nicodemus Easy in "Mr. Midshipman Easy."]
The more I reflect the more am I convinced that there is nothing required to make this world happy but equality, and the rights of man being duly observed—in short, that everything and everybody should be reduced to one level. Do we not observe that it is the law of nature—do not brooks run into rivers—rivers into seas—mountains crumble down upon the plains? Are not the seasons contented to equalize the parts of the earth? Why does the sun run round the ecliptic, instead of the equator, but to give an equal share of his heat to both sides of the world? Are we not all equally born in misery? Does not death level us all aequo pede, as the poet hath it? Are we not all equally hungry, thirsty and sleepy, and thus leveled by our natural wants? And such being the case, ought we not to have our equal share of good things in this world, to which we have an undoubted equal right? Can any argument be more solid or more level than this, whatever nonsense Dr. Middleton may talk?

Lease the Gas Works.
[Lord Macaulay, 1830.]

The fame of public works is a much less certain test of their utility than the amount of toll collected at them. In a corrupt age there will be a direct embezzlement. In the purest age there will be abundance of jobbing.

In a bad age the fate of the public is to be robbed. In a good age it is much milder, merely to have the dearest and the worst-of everything. Buildings for state purposes the state must erect. And here we think that in general the state ought to stop. We firmly believe that five hundred thousand pounds subscribed by individuals for railroads or canals will produce more advantage to the public than five millions voted by Parliament for the same purpose. There are certain old saws about the master's eve and about everybody's business in which we place great faith.

Survival of the Fittest.

[Aristotie.]
So what hinders the different parts of the body from having this merely accidental relation in nature? As the accidental relation in nature? As the teeth, for example, grow by necessity, the front ones sharp, adapted for dividing, and the grinders flat and serviceable for masticating the food; since they were not made for the sake of this, but it was the result of accident. And in like manner as to the other parts, in which there appears to exist an adaptation to an end. Wheresoever, therefore, all things together (that is, all the parts of one whole) happened like as if they were made for the sake of something, these were preserved, having been appropriately constituted by an internal spontanetty; and whatsoever things were not thus and whatsoever things were not the constituted perished and still perish.

Republican Simplicity.

[More's "Utopia."]

They have but few laws, and such is their Constitution that they need not many. They very much condemn other nations, whose laws, together with the commentaries on them, swell up to so many volumes; for they think it an unreasonable thing to oblige men to obey a body of laws that are both of such a bulk and so dark as not to be understood by every one of the subjects. They have no lawyers among them, for they consider them as a sort of people whose profession it is to disguise matters and to wrest the laws; and, therafore, they think it much better that every man should plead his own cause and trust it to the judge, as in other places the client trusts it to a counselor.

Trans-isthmian Canal.
[Southey's Life of Nelson.]
This (Gen. Dalling's) project was to take Fort San Juan, on the river of that name, which flows from Nicaraugua into the Atlantic, make himself master of the lake itself and of the cities of Granada and Lear, and thus cut off the communication of the Spaniards between their northern and southern possessions in America. Here it is that a sessions in America. Here it is that a canal between the two seas may most easily be formed—a work more impor-tant in its consequences than any which has ever yet been effected by human

"Chestnuts."
[Lord Macaulay, 1830.]
He (Southey) cannot quote Francis Bugg without a remark on his unsavory name. A man might talk folly like this by his own fireside, but that any human being, after having made such a joke, should write it down and copy it out, and transmit it to the printer and correct the proof sheets and send it forth into the world, is enough to make us ashamed of our species.

The funny sights one sees in the police office of a night are sometimes worthy of being chronicled. A few nights ago a Tunes reporter was sitting near the clerk's desk, on the lookout for an item, when a dapper little fellow, dressed in a suit of gray which had seen much better days, walked in briskly and rather the worse for liquor. He stepped up to the railing, and, in a matter-offact fashion, in which shame and brashness were ludicrously mixed, said: "Hem! ha! stepped up to the railing, and, in a matter-offact fashion, in which shame and brashness Completely busted. Can I be accommodated for the night with an apartment?"

The reporter, to whom this fine speech was addressed, replied: "Why, of course, my dear fellow, but you will not be comfortable, you know! The bridal chamber is engaged, and the parlor suite is full of water.
If you don't object to several in one room, you can be accommodated for the night." To this the dapper fellow answered, quite complacentily: "Oh! don't mention it; been in the war, you know; fought the Indians all around." He was accommodated with a blanket and shoved into a room with about 50 more bums, and slept quite comfortably until morning, when, upon being tupned out, he kicked up a deuce of a row because he had failed to find sheets in his "bed."
The next man was a little fellow, with a very husky voice and red hair, who had been found standing asleep in the middle of the sldewalk on First street a few nights before and who was then booked as a simple drunk and released in the morning. At that time he had a fine watch and chain and $7.30 in his pocket. He walked up to the desk, and the officer, who recognized him, said: "Where is your watch?" "Pawmed," was the short reply. "For whisky?" asked the officer.
"Yum." "Want a bed?" "Yum." With a blanket and a shove "Yum" was disposed of.

The next man was a good-looking person, well-dressed, with a black mustache, gold scarf-pin, gold watch-chain and rings, looking as wise and as drunk as an owl. He walked up and down the police office once or twice without saying a word. Then, addressing the desk, he made the following pertinent remark: "This rain is worth $100,000; do you know it? I say so." After repeating "Do you know it?" five or six times he walked out abruptly and disappeared in the mizzle."

The curse effected are simply marvelous, and can be substantiated by the very best citizens of Los Angeles. During the past three years we have endeavored to be conscientious with sur patients, and if, upon examination, we find, in our judgment, the case to be of an incursible nature, we unhesitatingly inform the patient or friends. We believe this system to be justifiable and are ready to condemn any physician who would do otherwise. Below we give a sample of the curse effected by us.

The Tax for Fencing.

[Ben: Pertey Peore is American Ositivator.]

A statistician estimates the cost of fencing of our American farms at $2,000,000,000, or nearly the aggregate of our national debt. On an average this fencing requires renewal every ten years, necessitating an average outlay of $200,000,000 per annum; that is, protection against our neighbors' live stock imposes the necessity of a permanent investment in unproductive fixtures of a capital nearly equal to the capital stock of all our railroads, and the payment of an annual tax, the proceeds of which nearly equal the entire revenue of our national government. This tax, it should be remembered, falls exclusively upon the agricultural interest, as the above estimate does not include the inclosures of town lots or of manufacturing establishments.

I have no means at hand of testing the accuracy of the above estimate, and feel very much disposed to reduce it. But making all reasonable allowance, it is evidennt that it involves a very large residuum of truth. If it is evan half as great as represented the fencing tax is one of the most grinding imposts ever levied upon productive industry. If the farmers of our country were by law compelled to pay $100,000,000 per annum from the proceeds of their labor by way of a direct tax to the general government, there would be no bounds to their complaints. But this tax, for it is a real tax, is borne, if not cheerfully, yet without serious murmurings; from the fact that it is accepted as one of the necessities of agriculture that the crop raiser be compelled, at boundless expense, to protect himself against the ravages of the domestic animals of the stock raiser? I believe that this is one of the untenable prejudices of the olden time that is destined to be exploded by the advance of civilization. Instead of requiring this outlay of the crop raiser, I believe that the true social order would impose this duty upon the stock raiser, who can perform it at a much smaller expense. By the process of soiling animals, t stock. If his heighbor would note we had be example his line fences might also be dispensed with.

The question of personal right is whether the individual stock raiser should be permitted to subject society to an enormous burden to guard against the ravages of his animals, or whether society should require him to guard against those same injuries at a comparatively trifling expense. I do not believe that he has any natural right thus to tax his neighbors. Legislation is beginning to embrace this new idea. During a visit to Virginia I was informed by an intelligent farmer that the law of that State recognizes a man's line as his fence, and protects him against the ravages of his neighbor's cattle, either by the confiscation of the offending animal or by an action of damages, or both. The benefit of the new system is so generally appreciated that only one man in the neighborhood refused to accept it. His appreciation of the claims of justice, however, had lately been questioned by several prosecuted.

If this policy should be generally lately been questioned by several prosecuted.

If this policy should be generally adopted agriculture will be relived of a grinding impost, crop production will be cheapened, and subsistence will become more abundant. The stock wiser, it is true, will be deprived of the herage of the roadside, but by turning his attention to scientific and economic methods of stock feeding, and by adapting his business to its legitimate conditions, he will place it upon a sounder basis. The cheapening of general crop raising will more than compensate for the confinement of his stock to his feeding inclosures. But the material benefit is not the only one. The removal of those eyesores, the old worm fences, will add to the landscape an element of beauty which will minister to the higher elements of our nature, and enhance the attractions of and enhance the attractions of

Roup and Its Treatment.

Roup and Its Treatment.

[Fannie Field in Prairie Farmer.]
Roup is a nasty disease, and I don't like to write about it one bit better than I like to doctor it, but I have to; for every year, from the time when the cool days and frosty nights come in the fall, until settled warm weather comes in the spring, fully two-tkirds of the poultry letters that come to me describe the symptoms of roup in some of its stages, and call for remedies; and I answer the same questions over and over again until my very soul is weary of the repetition, and my mind is so full of the subject that I am liable to recommend roup remedies in answer to any question that comes up. Why, one day when a neighbor said that Ben was suffering from hoarseness and sore throat, I told her to put him in a box and fumigate him with pine tar, and sulphur, and carbolic acid, and it was only when she remarked somewhat doubtfully that "that might be a good remedy, but would make his clothes smell horrid," that I saw she was talking about her husband instead of an old rooster. And the woman who asked me what remedy to use for her croupy baby, was informed that a dose of castor oil, followed by a few doses of German roup pills, would set it all right in a few days! Now, to avoid making any more hasty blunders of that kind, and thereby getting into serious difficulty with friends and neighbors, I am going to get this roup business off my mind by answering the inquiries I have on hand, those that are somewhere on the way to me, and those that people are getting ready to ask, all in this one article; and you better keep this paper handy for future reference.

The fiest symptoms of roup are usually like those of a "cold in the head" charge from the nostrils gradually grows yellow, thickens and has an offensive smell. Still neglected, the foreignows still weaker, the head swells, sometimes the eyes are closed, the nostrils are clogged with thick, offensive matter, and the victim can only breathe through the mouth; ulcers form in the throat and around the eyes, and the fowl dies. Fowls that receive no "medical treatment" generally die in from three to ten days after the first symptoms of roup appear; but sometimes roupy fowls will linger along for two or three weeks, or a month, before death seleases them from their misery.

As soon as you notice the first symptom of colds among your fowls, separate the sick ones from the well, and clean and disinfect the house, feed troughs and drinking vessels. Give the affected fowls a desertspoonful of castor oil apiece at night, and for the next week feed on cooked feed, with daily doses (a tablespoonful of the pulverized to a pint of food) of charcoal and the Douglass mixture; also add four or five drops of carbolic acid to a quart of water, and use it to mix their food once a day.

THE SECOND STAGE.

When the fowls are in the second quart of water, and use it to mix their food once a day.

THE SECOND STAGE.

When the fowls are in the second stage of the disease before treatment is commenced, give the castor oil, charcoal, etc., and in addition use the German roup pills according to directions. Examine the throat, and if you see ulcers or canker spots, dust them well with burnt alum or with powdered chlorate of potash. When the disease has progressed so far that the nostrils are clogged up, the eyes run, and the mouth and throat full of ulcers, kill the afflicted ones, disinfect the premises, and give the well fowls the charcoal, Douglass mixture and acid three or four times a week, until no new cases appear. Or give a few doses of the roup pills as a preventative.

What causes roup? Well, as I said before, the chief cause is a neglected cold, and fowls take cold from roosting in draughts, confinement in damp, ill ventilated houses, sudden exposure to cold after being confined in artificially-in warmed houses, and exposure to cold after being confined in artificially-in warmed houses, and exposure to cold after being confined in artificially-in warmed houses, and exposure to cold after being confined in artificially-in warmed houses, and exposure to cold after being confined in artificially-in warmed houses, and exposure to cold after being confined in artificially-in warmed houses, and exposure to cold after being confined in artificially-in warmed houses, and exposure to cold after being confined in artificially-in warmed houses, and exposure to cold after being confined to cold after the system has been overstimulated by the enormous doses of cayenne pepper that some poultry-keepers think is the one thing needful in order to secure a supply of eggs in which was a regular sweat, and then they take severe colds as soon as exposed to the outer air. To prevent roup, avoid the causes; or, in other words, so censtruct your poultry-houses that they will be dry and well ventilated, and arrange roosts so that the fowls will not be compelled to sl THE SECOND STAGE.

TREATMENT.

Keep fowls that you are treating for roup in a dry, warm place apart from the well fowls, and do not return them to the flock until you are sure they are quite well. And then mind what I said a few weeks ago about moving them from a warm room to a cold poultry-house. Lower the temperature of the "hospital" gradually, until it reaches that of the poultry-house, and then the fowls will not feel the change. Neglect of this precaution often causes a relapse of roup, and the last roupy state of that fowl is worse than the first.

first.

I suppose you are wondering why I do not recommend, as many poultry doctors do, washing the sick fowls' heads and sore eyes with something and pressing the thick matter from the nostrils, etc. Because it is a nasty job, and not one farmer poultry raiser in 10,000 would ever do it, anyway. Besides if roup be taken in time, there is no need that it ever reach the worst stage where so much fussing is necessary. There! If anybody has any more questions about roup, send them right along and I will do the best I can for you.

As he approached, the latter said: "Mr. —, I have been sent to see you about several works of art." Visions of pictures fitted through the mind of the gentleman, and he requested the caller to proceed.

The invitation was accepted, when, to the horror of the man of business, the tall, gaunt individual unbuttoned his coat, and drew from under his left arm, and from around his back, a fiexible covered book about 2½ feet long, 2 feet wide and 1 inch think, and proceeded to dilate upon the beauties of copies his house had made of celebrated pictures owned by Gould, the Vanderbitts, etc. Nosale was effected. The trick is one entirely new in the experience of Providence people, and one which will enable the canvasser, if he has a long and thin body, to work to perfection, as the flexible book follows the contour of the body and the unsuspecting victim, failing to see the ordinary indications of the book peddler, unwittingly asks the fiend to enter his office.

inquiries I have on hand, those that are somewhere on the way to me, and those that people are getting ready to ask, all in this one article; and you better keep this paper handy for future reference.

The flest symptoms of roup are usually like those of a "cold in the head" in the human subject, hoarseness, rattling in the throat, sneezing, watery eyes, and a slight discharge from the nostrils; in fact, I think that in the vast majority of cases roup, to begin with, is nothing more or less than a cold. We all know that with human beings a neglected cold often runs into some serious, often fatal, disease, and it is but reasonable to suppose that fowls are affected the same way. If the disease be not treated almost as soon as the symptoms appear, the hoarseness and rattling in the throat increases, the fowl grows weak and

ZOLA AT WORK.

Zola AT WORK.

Painstaking Methods of the Notorious French Novelist.

[Allegmeine Zeitung.]

Zola writes everything himself; he never has a secretary for his extensive correspondence. He even seals his wrappers and addresses them when he sends his friends brochures or his translator's material. He also writes his literary manuscript himself. Out of it the printers compose what are called "placards," large pages with four gigantic columns of text. These are sent to the author carefully revised and free from errors; then Zola begins to correct. He fills the wide margin all around with hundreds of marks and letters; ink lines cut through the text, then threads ran crossways and diagonally, entwining like a lasso a sentence scribbled in an open space; scarcely a line is exempted from the hieroglyphics of the master. Here a note of interrogation must make room for one of exclamation; here a semicolon is changed into a full point; a comma before drafter the "et" effectively divides a phrase; particles are replaced by adjectives; substantives take the place of pronouns; redundant adverbs must also disappear; "the past definite" is substituted for the "imperfect;" more descriptive words supply the place of tame ones; for an expression repeated in five or six pages a synonym is introduced; whole phrases are remodeled, sentences are condensed into two or three words, and even half columns are ruthlessly consigned at once into the compositor's type case.

[Corry Fiyer.]

A Sunday school teacher in the eastern part of the State asked her class where Christ was born. One bright little fellow promptly put up his hand, and when given chance to answer very confidently shouted, "Easton!"

The teacher was dumbfounded for a second, but maintained her composure, and said "No," and reprimanded the little fellow. The remainder of the class would not venture a guess.

"Well," said the teacher, "I will tell you where the Savior was born, and you all want to remember it."

All were deeply attentive, but none absorbed as the little fellow who had made the prompt guess.

"Christ was born at Bethlehem," said the teacher.

"Thunderation!" said the little fellow; "that's so. I knew it was some

THE SUNDAY LAW.

Its Agitation Begun in Earnest at the State Capital.

The agitation now in progress at the State Capital, in favor of a reënactment of the Sunday law, seems to have begun with a good deal of vigor. While the mass meeting held on Tuesday evening a good deal of vigor. While the mass-meeting held on Tuesday evening in the Assembly Chamber was not at-tended by a majority of members of the Legislature, it brought ought an audience of representative men and women whose views on the Sunday question were ably voiced. Speaker Jordan presided, and after taking the chair, introduced George W. Knox, of Los Angeles, who delivered the opening address.

the chair, introduced George W. Knox, of Los Angeles, who delivered the opening address.

He said that this was a question upon which every public man should have, as President Andrew Johnson used to say, a policy. It is a remarkable fact that Southern California is filling up today with the cream of the intelligence, refinement and wealth of the Eastern and Northeastern sections of our Union. They come here believing our State to be a second Garden of Eden. Their hopes are realized, so far as soil and climate are concerned. Ther find a paradise that has made happy homes and a prosperous people. They find also that, while California has so much to boast of, we had no day set apart for rest, expressive of religious sentiment, appropriate for Christian worship. This is said not to be a religious question, but with religious people it is a religious question, but with religious people it is a religious question, but with religious people it is a religious question. The people who come from the East, who have been accustomed to look upon the Sabbath as a day of rest, one that should be devoted to Christian worship, cannot readily grasp the California idea that it is merely a holiday. As our codes now stand, the Sabbath is nothing more; and as such is classed with the 4th of July and 22d of February. It is a holiday—nothing more nor less. As a holiday, none will say we do not need it. Our State long ago recognized the fact that something more than a holiday observance was necessary, and laws calling for the closing of saloons and forbidding other things offensive to religious tastes were passed. Four years ago one of those strange upheavals in politics came along, and the great Democratic party, riding into power, repealed those laws, and the Sabbath day since has been regarded simply as a holiday. Whether we want a holiday simply, or coupled with it religious observance, is a matter that concerns us as individuals.

But whether or not the saloons are to remain open, our children enticed therein and the Sabbath day since has been regarded simply as a holiday. Whether we want a holiday simply, or coupled with it religious observance, is a matter that concerns us as individuals.

But whether or not the saloons are to remain open, our children enticed therein and made drunkards, contract the habit of gambling, come in contact with infamous associations and all manner of vice, concerns us collectively. He would not say that all saloons tolerated infamy and vice, for many were on a plane of respectability and were frequented by good citizens, but it was a well known fact that a majority of the so-called saloons are where vice and crime have their origin. Sunday being a holiday, your boy and mine are turned loose; they wander where they please. Ought these dens of vice to be opened to them on that day to tempt them from the paths of virtue and morality? The speaker said he was born and raised in a country where the Sabbath was not only set apart as a day of rest, but where society protected and sheltered it from all corrupting influences usually found around places of vice. Why are the saloons closed upon election day? Why did they not abolish that law also? Because the public sentiment in both the political parties recognize the undeniable fact that the saloons are the places from which originate all trouble, if not all vice. We have repealed the Sunday law. We should now reënact it. If not as it was formerly then is some other form, however modified. The time is ripe for such a movement. I believe my constituents would stand by me in voting for its enactment. If, however, I thought they would not stand by me upon that question, then would I stand by myself. (Applause.) It is right, it is just, it is in the interest of the whole people. We want a Sunday law that will protect our little ones and shield them from the allurements of vice. The speaker referred to the great number of young men who were growing up in California, graduating in her dives as hoodlums. He was opposed to brass bands and baseball clubs par mocracy. Get the ladies in the Democratic party to labor with you, and you may accomplish the desired result.

Mr. Knox was followed by Senator Steele. He spoke at some length upon the question of agitating the revivification of the Sunday law. It had been discussed on the rostrum, in the recial strate, from the regulating in the or agrating the revivincation of the Sunday, law. It had been discussed on the rostrum, in the social circle, from the pulpit, in the press, until a strong public opinion had been established, which now should be crystalized into laws. If public opinion does not sustain a law it is difficult if not impossible sustain a law it is difficult if not impossible to enforce it. He believed there was a healthy public sentiment in this State today in favor of the enactment of a Sunday law. Obedience to the laws of health bringsvigor, satisfaction, physical enjoyment. Disobedience to these laws entails suffering and bodily punishment. Our statutes are disobeyed not only by the people at large, but not infrequently by the very men who make them. We must not hope too much for a Sunday law; but I believe we need it and should have it; it could and should be enforced.

Rev. E. R. Dill, chaplain of the assémbly, and Rev. Dr. Frost, also addressed the meeting, making strong pleas in favor of a return to Sunday observance and a higher standard of public morality.

IRRIGATION.

An Animated Discussion in the

An *Animated Discussion in the Senate.

[Cor. San Francisce Post.]

Bowen, of San Diego, in glowing language depicted the transformation which had taken place in the southern part of the State through the instrumentality of water. All was waste, desolation and barrenness until by means of irrigation the sandy deserts were converted into blooming fields, flourishing orchards and rich vineyards. In proof of this he read a letter from the Central Facilic passenger agent, T. H. Goodman, who recommended the establishment of an immigration agency for Northern California to divert the tide of travel from the South. Holding up a map of California, published a short time since by the Record-Union (by Wm. H. Mills), he pointed out the injustice therein done to his section, and characterized it as a "contemptible fraud and a picturesque lie."

Los Angeles was laid down on this map is located on the summit of barren hills and surrounded by desert wastes. On the east it was bounded by a desert, on the west by is alt water and on the south by nothing. The Riverside ditch, shout 8 feet in width, if the brought more wealth and people into the State than all the riparian owners in the State. They were the dogs in the manger in the these. They were the dogs in the manger in the down the state than all the riparian owners in the state. They were the dogs in the manger in the these than all the riparian owners in the state. They were the dogs in the manger in the double of the wealth of the State, and retired to allow others, who were willing, the cooks of the past rises the ghost of the English common law, which utters the words, "riparian rights," and like the cause of King Lear upon his degenerate daughters, it condemns them to sterlitty. Riparianism is a bare hook, at which immigrants to this State do not bite, and Northern California must change her methods if she expects to develop her alleged citrus belt. A citrus fair can be held in the frozen North as well as in the sunny South, but you cannot move the trees and orchards. You must travel down South to see these.

Caminetti interrupted the speaker and objected to such sectional contrasts, which only engendered bad feeling and militated against the bill he was advocating. Bowers disclaimed all intention of wounding the fellings of any Senators, and insisted that he should argue in any manner he saw fit.

he should argue in any manner he saw fit.

WHITE'S ABLE SPEECH.

White, of Los Angeles, for the first time, showed the stuff that he is made of' by a remarkably able argument in favor of the bill from, as he said, a legal point of view. He did not read his speech, as Bowers did, yet his language was eloquent, forcible and convincing. What so far has been unusual, he was listened to with great attention, for he enforced silence by his splendid delivery. He said that being in a section of the State which depended, not only for its prosperity, but for its very existence, on irrigation, he had, notwithstanding, proclaimed himself as opposed to the call of the extra session by Governor Stoneman. He did so because he believed some of the legislation then proposed was in violation of the principles of right and justice, and he was utterly opposed to the overthrow of the Supreme Court on the plea that this tribunal had rendered distasteful decisions. He said the judgment rendered by Judge McKinstry was, from a legal standpoint, one of the ablest ever written by any judge. The platforms of both the great political parties call for action on this question, and the Democratic plank calls attention to the fact that the English riparian system is not adapted to the wants of this State. He could not understand how any Democratic Senator, who had pledged himself to indorse this platform, could vote against the passage of this bill. He asserted that the repeal of section 1422 would not interfere with any of the rights or privileges now enjoyed by riparian owners.

Senator Conklin, of Santa Clara, then asked if such were the case why it was that the irrigationists were so anxious to have this section repealed.

White replied that it was to protect the small streams which now had no riparian owners from being gobbled up by them. WHITE'S ABLE SPEECH.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The first snow of consequence for many years has reached Georgia and other parts of the South. In many places the whole population of boys and business men turned out to enjoy the exhilarating sport of snow-balling. In one town a battle lasted two hours, until each side was completely exhausted.

It is said that the population of Illinois outside of Chicago is decilining. According to the school census, the population has increased but 108,366 since 1890, which has been all swallowed up, and more, too, by Cook county, leaving the rest of the State with a population of 200,000 less than it had six years ago.

and dressmaning upon the dummy as wen as upon real babies.

A gentleman in Paris called upon a lady who has a mania for dogs. Ten or twelve pupples greeted him as he entered. He repulsed them kindly, when the lady exclaimed: "It is very easy to see that you do not love dogs." "Not love dogs." exclaimed the visitor; "I guess I do. I ate ten of them during the siege."

Horse-car drivers are made the object of benevolence in some cities. One benevolent lady sends out hot coffee at the end of each trip, and another supplies oyster stews to the drivers. This is a practical way of "pitying the poor drivers," and might be imitated in any city as a form of benevolence which would certainly be thoroughly appreciated.

appreciated.

At a sale of unclaimed articles at a Pennsylvania railroad office, one bidder bought a good sewing machine for $4.25. A man bought a good overcoat for 25 cents. One package was found to be full of baby mittens. If the thoughtless owners of the articles had inquired for their possessions before the sale, there would not have resulted the apparent give-away of wares. As a rule, one is fortunate, in the place of losing, who leaves articles in steam cars.

The Chinese Minister Shocked. The Chinese Minister Shocked.
[Washington Correspondence New York Sun.]
A funny story is told of the Chinese Minister when he saw, for the first time, a young woman in a low dress at an afternoon reception. No doubt he would have expected something of the kind at an evening party but he was not prepared to see low neck and short sleeves in the daytime when making afternoon visits. One young woman assisting the hostess where he made this particular call wore a party dress, intending to go direct from the house to an evening receparternoon visits. One young woman assisting the hostess where he made this particular call wore a- party dress, intending to go direct from the house to an evening reception. The Minister and several of his suite had just been presented to the hostess and her other assistants when the young woman in the low dress entered from the tea-room.

"I shall never forget Mr. Chang's expression," said the hostess, afterward, "when Miss Blank came in, wealing her party dress. It can't be described, the mixture of astonishment and apprehension in the shoet to his sense of propriety. It flashed over his face in one instant, and I thought he would certainly take flight from the room.
It was no wonder, for you know how entirely secluded Chinese ladies are. But it was so very amusing, the sudden start and frightened, amazed look on his face, that I could hardly keep from laughing. The funniest thing about it was Miss Blank's innocent pleasure on being introduced to the Minister whom she had so shocked. She didn't know anything about it till after he had gone, and she had, said she, enjoyed his call so much. Of course he railied quickly, and it was all over the next moment. But it was very funny."
When the story got out a young woman said, with refreshing independence, "Gracious! I guess he will get used to low-neck dresses if he stays in Washington long."
The Chinese Minister has not been in Washington long, not a year by several months, but it is evident that his excellency is already used to low-neck dresses, and that he is not to be again shocked by fashionable European gowns.

Theodore Tilton and Fred Donglass. [London Correspondence New York Times.]

Fred Donglass and his wife have been in Paris this winter—for that matter, may be there still—and have received much polite attention from a section of the American colony there. Donglass and Theodore Tilton had been friends in the old days, and naturally they went about a good deal together, now that they were met again. The two heavy, large-featured, distinguished-looking men, with their massive heads of white hair, attracted very general notice on the boulevards. One day they dined together at a restaurant, and talked together for a long time. A Frenchman sat near and waterlied them attentively. A day or two afterward Mr. Tilton came alone to this café. The Frenchman, after some hesitation, approached him and politely asked permission to put a question. Mr. Tilton said: "Certainly, if you will speak slowly, for my French is still very imperfect." Then the stranger said: "When I saw you and your brother together here, although I could, of course, understand nothing that you said, I made up my mind, from the refined modulation of your voices, that you must both be orators. I should like to ask if in England it is usual to have two brothers so equally gifted and experienced in public speaking." Theodore Tilton and Fred Douglass
